CHARACTER VIRTUES

I'VE DEVELOPED THROUGH PARTICIPATION IN SOCIAL ACTION

Compassion | Leadership | Community Awareness |
Confidence | Empathy

#iwill ... campaign to get others around me more involved in campaigns and practical things that would help the environment

Most of my social action has to do with the environment, as that's my biggest passion! In my spare time I do litter picks to improve my local area. I have taken part in campaigns such as the Great British Bee Count, and 30 Days Wild. Every day I leave for school early so that I have enough time to pick litter, and move snails and so on from the paths on my way, and any spare money I have, I give to an animal charity.

I also like to do fundraising, I did the Diamond Challenge for the Duke of Edinburgh Award last year, and, through church, I have organised cake stalls, Christmas Fairs and helped out with the Church Fairs when they need extra support. I have also volunteered at a local Scout campsite to help out with looking after it.

I like doing social action as it means I get to do activities alongside people my age, or people older. I have learnt empathy and compassion for others and for wildlife through the campaigns and volunteering that I've done. I also like to inspire others around me to get involved too – sometimes I stand up in my school assemblies to raise awareness of issues I care about.

"I like raising money and awareness for wildlife campaigns and charities, and encouraging those around me to join in!"

Organisations I've Participated With:

Duke of Edinburgh Award, The Wildlife Trust, church, Scouts, Girlguiding
